IN HONOR OF THE DEAD.

"UNDER THE ROSES THE BLUE, UNDER THE LILIES THE GRAY."

Memorial, the Day of Bestowing with Garlands and Flowers the Graves of the Nation's Dead, Fittingly Observed Throughout the Land.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Over three thousand people, many of whom were the uniform of the Grand Army of the Republic, were gathered around a handsome specimen of memorial sculpture in Cavalry cemetery. The event was the unveiling and dedication of the monument raised by the state and citizens to the gallant James M. Mulligan, colonel of the Twenty-third Illinois infantry, who fell at the battle of Kernstown, Va., while in command of a division on January 18, 1864, and whose memorable exclamation, "Lay me down and save the flag," has been perpetuated in the war literature of the nation.

Of the many observances of Decoration Day in different parts of the country, none were more touching than those, and none more presented during the dedication exercises when the wife and children of the deceased soldier, forty of his surviving comrades and the great concourse of spectators stood bareheaded, while a quartette sang "Lay Me Down to Save the Flag," was affecting in the extreme.

The exercises were opened by Mr. John R. Walsh, chairman of the monument board. He introduced Rev. F. J. Conway, vicar general of the diocese, who delivered the dedicatory prayer. A hymn was then rendered by a male quartette. Miss Eliza A. Starr read "An Ode to Col. Mulligan," written for the occasion, and the oration of the day was delivered by William J. O'Shanahan, who took for his subject "The Life, Character and Services of Col. Mulligan."

At the conclusion of the exercises the remains of the Twenty-third Illinois were escorted back to the city by the Ribblesdale Rifles. The monument is a beautiful specimen of the sculptor's art; the material is eastern grey granite, and the design is of the medieval in its treatment. The base is nine feet square and rises in three ascending stages, from which arises a group of four lines on a richly moulded base, surmounted by Gothic gables. On each of the four sides of these gables are beautifully wrought bas-reliefs. Two of them are devoted to recording the virtues and heroic deeds of the dead soldier; the other two, in relief of the deceased, and the rear is decorated with a rich carved wreath of laurel. From the center of the massive base shaft, and surmounted by an elaborate cross of the Ancient Celtic type. The cost of the monument was $3,000, one-half of which was contributed by the soldiers and the remainder by the friends of the deceased soldier.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The celebration of memorial day witnessed a display that has never been surpassed in this city's vicinity. Not a cemetery was neglected, and possibly not a grave of a hero of the nation's great conflict lay without its tribute from the survivors of the struggle or friends and relatives of the dead hero. Nothing was neglected in the way of entertaining those who participated in the ceremonies or who were spectators of the several parades.

Two grand stands were erected from which to view the procession. In one, the "reviewing stand," was seated the president of the United States army, and in the other, including Senators Edmunds, Whitney, Lamar and Vilas. On this stand also was Gen. Phil Sheridan, commander of the United States army, and Gen. Henry H. Hunt, commanding the military division of the Atlantic, and staff; Major Grace, representative of foreign governments, and the prominent officials of the state and city. The other stand, known as the "Grand Army stand," was occupied by the members of the grand army, friends of the order and witnessed the parade.

The procession moved down Fifth avenue at precisely a quarter of 12 o'clock, turning at Fourteenth street into Union square and down Broadway to Eighth street, where it was dismissed, the several posts and divisions then selected their own routes to the place of their after ceremonies.

The president, his cabinet and the officers of the United States army were escorted at the head of the line from the Windsor hotel to the reviewing stand by the Old Guard and a special guard of honor from the Grand Army. After them came the First division National Guard in two brigades, comprising eight regiments of infantry and two batteries of artillery. This military body acted as escort to the Grand Army of the Republic, thirty-eight posts of which, together with various uniformed civil organizations and sons of veterans, constituted thirty divisions of the procession.

During the afternoon several of the posts held memorial services in their post rooms, instead of going to the cemeteries, and in the evening the general memorial service was held at the Academy of Music, Senator William M. Everts delivering the principal oration.

The theaters with few exceptions gave matinees, and the Elphinstone, on Canal street, opened its maw for the first reception of the season. Raves took place at Jerome Park, Brighton Beach and the New York and Brooklyn Driving Park.

At Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, June 1.—The morning dawned with a sunny promise of a bright day, but by 10 o'clock the gathering cloud dropped a little moisture and somewhat dampened the spirits of the assembled crowd. But the old soldiers seemed to pay no heed to the threat of a stormy day. They had often marched weary miles in the pelting rain, and exhausted, gone to sleep on the wet earth. Lane many of them, who headed all of them, they stepped proudly to the music, as if they felt some stirrings of the old war. There was a throng of the usual amount of mud on the streets after a shower, but the mud and mist air were better than hot sun and dust.

A glorious shower washed Spring Grove cemetery, and when the sun broke through the clouds the cheerful and happy throng of grass, leaf of tree, and blooming petal gleamed in vivid beauty and sparkle with dew freshness. It was nature's baptism of the fine quiet breeze of a nation's hero, preceding the decoration with the floral tokens of a nation's mindful gratitude and affection.

CHOLERA INTERVIEWS.

DISCUSSING DR. FERRAN'S EXPERIMENTS WITH VIRUS.

Mr. Wm. Gull on Negative Results—Physicians of the Court—Clark and Clayton—Results in Africa—Congolese Missionaries—Foreign.

LONDON, June 1.—The Herald correspondent, who recently in Spain, was inoculated for cholera by Dr. Ferran, with the symptoms as then called to The Herald, found the subject discussed that the medical faculty on information from the Madrid government had stopped inoculation, by reason of the conflicting opinions of physicians and the authorities on the efficacy of the treatment. Sir William Gull, who was created baronet after saving the prince of Wales' life in 1871, and made physician extraordinary to the queen, was interviewed after the correspondent had related his own inoculation experiences.

"What is your opinion of the efficacy of Dr. Ferran's method?"

"Cholera is not yet certainly known. I do not consider Dr. Ferran's discovery as conclusive, but regard it rather as the indication of a thought and not as an indication of fact; for we must wait the deduction of ideas."

"What is your answer to Dr. Ferran's proof, as shown by his swallowing a cholera germ?"

"That was nothing new. It has often been done without evil results. I do not doubt that Dr. Ferran is using the so-called bacilli of the virus, yet he has got to prove to us that his vaccine virus is not a poison. Dr. Koch discovered the so-called microbes, but there—here Sir William looked quizzically—he was asked to prove it. Moreover, Dr. Ferran has chosen a man when there is no real cholera epidemic. All his results are negative."

"How do you account for the failure that Dr. Ferran has created?"

"That I look upon as nothing. Truth does not come from failures, but reveals itself slowly and requires to be proved."

Sir Andrew Clark, Bart., another royal physician and Mr. Gladstone's medical attendant, was asked to prove his theory. He said, as early as 8 o'clock. He is a case of starvation and temperance as a cure for all maladies. Indeed, that is his general hobby.

"Will you oblige us with your views, Sir Andrew, as to the probable future of Dr. Ferran's discovery, cholera inoculation?"

"I regret that for a long time I have not studied the subject, so that I am not in a position to give a decided opinion. I am, however, of opinion as to cause of cholera differs so widely among eminent persons that without deep study it would be difficult to form any conclusion, more especially as discovery such as Dr. Ferran's would require practical proof. When some epidemic comes, Dr. Ferran may or may not prove his success. Yet by experimenting he is doing good, as such movements set medical men to work, and the progress of the science is good for science, whereas stagnation and inaction are fatal."

"Whom would you put in the highest authority on cholera in England?"

"Dr. Klein, most certainly, of St. Bartholomew's hospital. He is fresh from the cholera district in France, or you might get his views. My own last experience was so long ago as 1864, when I was off to India to deal with the epidemic."

Sir Oscar Clayton, the favorite surgeon and intimate friend of the Prince of Wales, was next visited at his consulting rooms in St. Martin's street, and he was taken to the royal palace, for the prince never forgets to bring back some souvenir of his journey to the port of death.

"Would you be kind enough to give your views on Dr. Ferran's work as regards cholera inoculation?"

"My view up to the present, although I might find reason to change them to-morrow are these:—The crudity of the scientific knowledge so far discovered as to the cause of cholera disinclines me to believe in inoculation. Doubtless the inoculation gave you a very good idea of what you have yet to do in order to go through of living in an epidemic. Here we have a physician who is inoculating people with a really unknown substance, in which it is not yet proved that even the germ of cholera exists. This is being used without even known, whether in case of the so-called bacilli, being really what it is represented to be, that inoculation would be efficacious in saving life. By this I mean that cholera has not been determined sufficiently in its nature as to know what class of fever it adheres to, and what kind of knowledge does not appear to me to warrant the application of an unknown remedy upon an unmastered disease. Of the nature of miasma we know thoroughly, as also many other things, and we are, therefore, we know how to counteract them. But I repeat of cholera we know almost nothing. The inoculation is working in the dark, and is highly liable to lead people into neglecting those sanitary measures which, to my mind, are the greatest barriers against the disease."

Meanwhile Dr. Ferran's experiments have been put to test. Africa, a town of 6,000 inhabitants, has given the following results from May 1 to May 18: Persons inoculated for the first time, 7,128; inoculated twice, 3,071; inoculated three times, 1,000; inoculated by cholera, 7. Of the latter only 12 died, while none who had been twice inoculated died. During the same period, May 1 to May 18, several other towns were inoculated at Africa among persons not inoculated, and thirty-nine of these were fatal.

Jealousy the Cause.

WARREN, Mass., June 1.—The body of James J. Lester, of the Shonabarger mine, was found lying in an alley with his throat cut, and his face mangled to such an extent that it was unrecognizable. It is supposed that a quarrel with John Laporte, the son of the county jailer, was the cause of the tragedy. Laporte was a frequent visitor to the mine, and was frequently threatened to kill Lester, but was not successful in the deed.

Comber, of the Congo mission, bore testimony to the great service rendered by Mr. Stanley in the cause of christianity, civilization and commerce. He also spoke of the honorable and even kind treatment of the natives of Africa by Mr. Stanley. At address in the nature of an eulogium was then formally presented by the Baptist Missionary society to their guest.

Mr. Stanley, in his reply, said that he was glad to have had the opportunity of helping the missionaries and of obtaining in return their help to teach the natives. Formerly he had understood the missionaries. However, since that he had seen Livingstonia, he recognized in him the type of a noble and spiritual monarch. The real work of the missionary was hard, his privations were great, his worldly reward small. Mr. Stanley expressed the hope that the Congo country would be well supplied with missionaries. He (Stanley) urged the society to be very careful about the kind of men they sent out as missionaries to Africa.

"Do not," he said, "send young men without first having taught them the practical life necessary to success, the same as you teach children in the inferior of the dead missionaries are of no more value than dead dead men. Gordon, dead, in vain. If he had not been a missionary, but a soldier, which received its death blow in Gordon's murder, would have been dawning and we would have seen the summer of civilization springing in the interior of Africa. Mr. Stanley finished his address by stating that the climate of Africa was not half so dangerous as the climate of the interior of the southern states of America, and that the little he had done for missionaries in Africa he had done so as to be of service to the commands of his superior, King Leopold. This last statement was greeted with cheers.

Why the Concession.

LONDON, June 1.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says the acceptance of Russia of England's counter proposals for a settlement of the Russo-Afghan frontier dispute, and the reason of it, was that the Russian government had been told by the British government that the climate of Africa was not half so dangerous as the climate of the interior of the southern states of America, and that the little he had done for missionaries in Africa he had done so as to be of service to the commands of his superior, King Leopold. This last statement was greeted with cheers.

"ALL HERE GOES!"

THOS. A. McComb Leaps over the Obstacles at Niagara Falls.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 1.—Thos. A. McComb, an American, who has been visiting for some time in the province of Ontario, Canada, from Niagara Falls, who has a family, to Niagara Falls to give a performance in the town hall, 8 o'clock. McComb has been at the falls driving heavily. After breakfast McComb and Allen McComb, his brother, went to the falls to walk to the Canadian side. On the return of the pair to the Canadian side, McComb and Morring struck over an iron railing, near the new suspension bridge, and took a look over the brink of the precipice. "That would be a terrible place for a man to go over," said McComb. So his friend was just about to take hold of McComb's arm to lead him away, when the latter lifted his hands above his head and leaped over the precipice, saying as he went, "All here goes!"

McComb struck head first on some trees about seven feet below the top and was killed on the spot. The body was found a few minutes later. He died before he could be taken to the town hall. Two days ago while Drowdy McComb fell asleep on the river bank, and narrowly escaped rolling over.

A PARABLE.

Heecher's Tort Trowers Causes Laughter and a Lay Sermon.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Toward the close of prayer meeting at Plymouth church, Mr. Beecher, making his finger gravely to the side of his head, said to those who sat on his right: "The edification has been evenly divided this evening. My friends on the left have been industriously engaged in laughing at me because I have a big hole in the left leg of my trousers. [Laughter.] Allow me to inform them that I have a new pair. If they were old and I couldn't afford new ones I should be irrationally selfish. As I'm not, but my wife is. [Renewed laughter.] In making a call my leg came in contact with a barrel and it had a hole in it, because the barrel was full of holes. I took a pin, but the pin dropped out. So it is with our sins. We can't pin them up. The pin will drop out and the hole be bare."

Cautious on the Hudson.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The American Canoeing association, composed of clubs from New York, Brooklyn, Long Island, Newburgh, Roundabout and Albany, in all twelve organizations, went late last evening to a picnic about two and a half miles south of this city. The arrangements have been made for a good time, and the Hudson river is a beautiful place, which numbers twenty-five members, owning eight canoes, under the captain's command. The association is a club of about forty canoeists will be on hand to attend the business meeting. Four races have been arranged—two with paddles and two with sails.

This Ripley Budget thinks that now while there is so little for the police to do in Maysville that they might be asked to "to the duty of hog catching." The Budget does not understand the real situation. The trouble is there is danger of the hogs catching the police.

THE Georgetown, (O.) News says: The salary of the Superintendent of Public Schools in Maysville, has been fixed at $800 a year, and this is an increase of salary. If the Superintendent of schools in cities like Maysville are only paid $800 per annum it is no wonder that the school system of Kentucky needs improving.

It used to be in Pennsylvania that owners of cattle had a remedy at law when any of the animals belonging to them were killed or injured by passing railroad trains. But it is not so now. The boot is on the other foot. Damage caused to a train by cattle, under a new law, is now collectible from the owners of such animals. So the West Chester Local says.

The Molans, a musical organization composed of members of St. Patrick's Church, who have been in training for several weeks past, will give an entertainment at the opera house to-morrow evening, the proceeds to be used in the erection of a new Catholic Church. The entertainment promises to be one of great interest, and under the circumstance there ought to be a crowded house on the occasion.

RIGHT REV. BISHOP MANS, of the Covington Diocese, was in Maysville on Sunday and presided at the morning services at 7:30 and 10:30 o'clock, at St. Patrick's Church. At the 7:30 mass eighty-five persons, nearly all of them children, received holy communion. At the 10:30 mass Rev. J. B. Glorieux officiated and was followed afterward by Bishop Mans with a beautiful and impressive sermon. After the discourse the persons who had received communion at the early morning mass were confirmed by the Bishop. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock the who had been confirmed renewed their baptismal vows and were enrolled in the Scapular. The children were then questioned by the Bishop who appeared to be much pleased with their answers to his interrogatories. The services of the day closed with holy benediction.

An exchange, speaking of cholera, says: "We must prepare to repel this unwelcome guest, should it come knocking at our doors by observing every precaution of cleanliness which is the only preventive. Thoroughly clean and air and secure ventilation for every part of your premises. Apply the white wash brush liberally. Look to your drains and see that no pools of stagnant water or heaps of rubbish are left to poison the atmosphere. Clean every well and cistern; give special attention to purifying your cisterns, which can be kept pure only by thorough ventilation. And throughout the season be sure that the sun and air penetrate at least once daily to every nook and corner of your dwelling. If we do all this thoroughly and carefully, we may hope that the disease if it comes this way will find no lodgment and pass us by."

MR. WALTER B. PHIPPS, the Deputy Revenue Collector for this part of the district, whose term of office will expire with that of Mr. Stoll, has been a polite, obliging and efficient officer. His office, as shown by the various examinations of the department agents, rates as high as any in the State. We believe he has done his duty well and satisfactorily to the authority to whom he is responsible, and in retiring to private life he has the good will of the public, who wish him success in any business in which he may engage. This much is due to an honest and capable official.

NEARLY 5,000 persons have been killed in France by lightning the last half century. An equal number have been seriously though not fatally wounded, and five times as many struck. The hot years have been the most fatal, and these were remarkable as being the best wine seasons. Singular to relate, in this connection, is the fact that there has not been a single death from lightning in Paris or the department of the Seine for upwards of twenty years, though there have been many violent storms there during that time.

SAMPSON OF OLD Was a powerful man, and must have had a good deal of iron in his blood. We do not want to be quite as strong as Sampson, nor so mischievous. But we all want vigor and strength; and we cannot have these unless the blood has its full quota of iron. There is no preparation of iron like that in Brown's Iron Bitters. Mr. W. J. Jones, Manchester, Va., says: "I took it for poor appetite and general weakness, and found it a good tonic."

The steamer Guiding Star arrived from Cincinnati yesterday afternoon with an excursion party of about nine hundred persons. The boat remained at the landing for an hour or more giving the passengers an opportunity to look over the town. It was a rather rough crowd of people, but they behaved fairly well and there was no serious disturbance during their stay in the city.

Health Statistics. "Are you going to County Island this summer?" asked a New York man of a friend who is an invalid. "Oh, yes, and I am going to bathe three times a day," was the reply. "Do you think it will do you any good?"

"Yes, the doctor says I must take a toddy every day, both to restore the circulation. That's how it does me good." "Well, I am going, too, this summer. That's just the kind of an invalid I am."

MURDER AND MASSACRE

UNPARALLELED IN THE HISTORY OF WANTON BUTCHERY.

With Meat-Hooks Stuck Through Their Heads the Victims are Hanged Alive. Their Eyes Dug Out, Butchered and Mutilated—The Indians.

TOMBSTONE, Ariz., June 1.—Latest advice report that the Indians have scattered and are now in small bands in different parts of Southwest New Mexico and mostly in the vicinity of the Black Range. More than thirty citizens are reported killed and many of them mutilated beyond recognition. The Indians are reported to be in the vicinity of Cook's Peak, fifteen miles from Tombstone. The greatest excitement prevails in the section and on the Gila. G. M. Cook is on the way here to relieve Col. Bradley and is expected very soon. The miners and ranchmen are coming in from all directions. A band of about thirty renegades was seen near Fleming, a small mining camp seven miles north of Silver City. The band was divided in two parties, one going into the Burro Mountains and the other toward Cook's Canyon. Five bodies were brought into Silver City killed by the renegades within six miles of the town. The wildest excitement prevails.

Horrible Mutilation. TOMBSTONE, Ariz., June 1.—A Silver City special says: "The bodies of Col. Phillips and family murdered by the Apaches have been brought in. They are all horribly mutilated. Col. Phillips' daughter had been hanged up alive with meat hook stuck through the back of her head. Mrs. Phillips' eyes were gouged out; her ears and breasts were cut off and she was otherwise brutally mutilated. The citizens are frantic that such outrages should be perpetrated without check."

Sixty Killed. DEMING, N. M., June 1.—A band of Apaches has passed south seven miles from here, heading for Mexico. Three companies of cavalry and sixty scouts are on the trail, but several hours behind. A company of volunteers, well armed and mounted, left there in pursuit of the Indians. About sixty persons have been killed since the outbreak.

Not One Captured. SILVER CITY, June 1.—The Indians of rapidly leaving this section and moving south, probably heading for the Black Range. Seventeen companies of troops are in the field, and there has not been one Indian taken in by them.

A PRISONER'S BOLT FOR LIBERTY.

John Johnson, District Judge, Jury and Sheriff before him, but is captured.

LYONS, N. Y., June 1.—Several days ago John Johnson, a criminal from New York, was indicted in this county on twelve counts for burglary, robbery and attempts to murder. He boldly avowed his intention to commit suicide to escape prison. He was tried upon an indictment for assault with intent to kill R. R. Van Dusen in Newark a month ago. The court room was packed with people and the gallery crowded with on-lookers because of Johnson's notorious career in crime.

At 5 o'clock District Attorney Hoag was counseling his address to the jury, and every one was listening intently when Johnson suddenly leaped from the prisoner's box and rushed toward him, yelling that he would kill him. Wild excitement followed, and the judge ran to one side of the room, while the district attorney escaped behind the witness stand, and the jury and clerks were scattered everywhere. Women in the gallery screamed and fainted. County Judge Collins and several other men caught hold of the prisoner from the rear and restrained him. Johnson is a powerful fellow and threw his captors out of his way. The sheriff and the guards sprang upon him and a desperate fight followed.

Men yelled: "Kill him," "Knock his brains out," "Let's lynch him here," and similar cries. Two guards were felled to the floor by Johnson's blows between the eyes and other received cuts and bruises about the face and scalp. Johnson was then taken to the jail with handcuffs, and exhausted by loss of blood Johnson fell to the floor and was carried back to the prisoner's box. His face was covered with blood and his cheeks were like jelly. The judge and sheriff after some time calmed down the excited audience and the jury took their seats. The judge charged the jury in a few words, and they returned almost immediately with a verdict of guilty. The prisoner was given the full penalty of the law, which is ten years in Auburn.

The President in New York. NEW YORK, June 1.—The President Cleveland arrived at Jersey City from Washington he went at once to the residence of Secretary Whitney in Fifth avenue, where he passed the night. He reviewed the Decoration day parade from the grand stand at the junction of Broadway, Twenty-fourth street and Fifth avenue. In the evening he will be present at the memorial services at the Academy of Music, where Mayor Grace presides and William M. Evans delivers an oration.

Coal Miners.

PITTSBURGH, June 1.—The National Executive committee of the Coal Miners' Union meet in this city on June 13 to take action on the threatened reduction of wages by the operators. The industrial convention of miners meet here early in July. Representatives from all the bituminous coal districts in the country are to be present.

Annulment Victory. PITTSBURGH, June 1.—The Republic Iron works, limited, has signed the order in its workmen's terms. This victory for the Annulment Association is especially important, from the fact that the product of this mill is almost exclusively that on which the present difficulty between the manufacturer and workmen hinges.

Cheating the Gallows. NEW ORLEANS, June 1.—The supreme court has refused the application for a rehearing in the Ford murder case. This finally ends the case. The court's action is for the commutation of the sentences of Patrick Ford and John Murphy from hanging to imprisonment for life are being directed.

Nellie Hearing the End. NEWARK, N. J., June 1.—Miss Nellie Canfield, who shot herself on Monday morning at a female seminary in Belleville, is still in a stupor. It is thought her death is very near. Mrs. Canfield said her daughter had expressed doubt for the act.
